Sea songs galore from three accomplished performers.

Your old-time sailor was a great one for singing. Rousing shanties to help get the work done, sentimental ballads about the comforts of home, bragging ditties of his life ashore and the young ladies (?) he enjoyed, historical tales of whaling, wrecks, and battles – all these helped Jack Tar to survive his often harsh life.

Ye Mariners All promises a great evening of singing and playing, with plenty of choruses.

Widely acclaimed for his lively and entertaining presentations of English folk songs, JOHN ROBERTS has performed at major festivals, colleges, clubs and coffeehouses throughout the United States, Canada, and his native England. His vast repertoire includes the ballads and songs of the sea, of rural pursuits, of social and sociable situations, of industrial toil and strife, and much more.

LARRY YOUNG sings and plays violin and mandolin. He has a wealth of performance experience locally and nationally, and has performed with folk music luminaries such as Bob Franke. As part of the duo Poor Richard's Penny, he released a CD of American colonial music entitled Lovely Nancy.

JOHN ROCKWELL sings and plays guitar, bodhran, and the bones. His passion for maritime music began while performing in The Sea Revels at the Emerson Majestic Theatre in Boston. He later sang and acted aboard a ship that toured Boston Harbor with a program called Boston By Sea: A Living History. He can be heard on two Revels' CD's: A Revel's Victorian Christmas and Homeward Bound.

Ye Mariners All takes its name from an old song that invites any passing sailor to stop into the pub, have a pint, and enjoy the conviviality of friends until shore leave is over - or the money is gone!
